BOY SCOUT HERO AS J. J. MILLER KILLED BY RUNAWAY STREET CAR

locked he tried to run to the front door along the ground as the trolley sped along with controls wide open. Finding he was unable to get to the front of the car he again boarded Mrs. Stollard's auto and she drove him to Cutting boulevard and Pullman avenue. Here McCarty brought the car to a grinding stop by applying the air brakes.

Tragedy Averted
A few moments later a northbound street car came into view. What would have happened if McCarty had not stopped the runaway trolley is too ghastly to think of. The motorman of the oncoming car would not have been able to bring his car to a halt and back up because a street car can only go in one direction. Patrons would probably have been trapped in the street car as the runaway tons of metal crashed head on into it.

McCarty is to be recommended for the highest award of the Boy Scouts, Aubrey Wilson, chairman of the Boy Scout council and Robert F. Cox, scout executive indicated last night. The Board of Review meeting at the Lincoln school tonight is expected to recommend the youth for a gold medal for his heroism.

Rites Saturday
Funeral services for Miller will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel. Rev. Kenneth B. Wallace will officiate. Interment will follow at the Evergreen cemetery, Oakland. He is survived by a son Howard, 17.

Miller at the controls of a "dead head" street car damaged in an accident here Wednesday left the Key System car barns here at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

The car was stopped at Twenty-third street and Pullman avenue the beginning of the single track, to permit a northbound car to pass.

As this car passed Miller, he was standing on the street gazing at his trolley according to Guy Morris, 454 Twentieth street, motorman of the northbound car. The car driven by Morris was pulling a trailer and it is believed by authorities that Miller may have backed into this trailer as he gazed at the trolley.

School Bus Appears
A few moments later a school bus driven by A. T. Haynes, 1236 Bissell avenue halted at the Southern Pacific crossing. Haynes and several children in the car saw Miller lying in the street.

McCarty, a member of Boy Scout Troop No. 1 of El Cerrito, and a member of the low ninth class at the Roosevelt Junior high school was one of the first to see the injured man.

McCarty jumped from the school bus and went to the aid of the injured man. He held Miller's head in his lap when A. R. Parks, 931 Evelyn avenue, Albany, a truck driver for the Pullman company approached. Parks alighted from his truck and with the assistance of McCarty, Miller walked to the front right steps of his car where he seated himself.

Go For Aid
Miller told McCarty and Parks that he had been injured and could not continue with the car. He asked them to go to the Key System car barns a few blocks distant and report the accident.

Parks and McCarty went to the truck and as they started to get on they saw the street car move out with Miller under the wheels. Seeing that the man was beyond help Parks continued to the car barns while McCarty started after the runaway car. Parks told the youth that his truck was not able to travel fast enough to catch up with the car and that he would summon aid at the car barns.

McCarty stripped off his heavy leather coat and dashed after the street car. It was at this point that Mrs. Stallard came along with her automobile and the chase at 30 miles an hour started.

Car Catches Fire
After the car had been halted, it caught fire due to the fact that McCarty had stopped it with the air brake and had not turned off the power. The youth pulled the trolley from the power wire. The fire department was summoned and the fire put out with but slight damage to the car.

Various versions were given of the manner in which Miller came underneath the car. Alexander Gianoglio, 774 Sixth street, a bus driver for the school department told officials that he saw the street car as it started on its death journey. He said that he saw a man jump from the right front steps of the car and then fall or dive underneath the rear wheels of the trolley. Gianoglio stated that he was so far away from the scene that he could not tell whether Miller was accidentally thrown under the car or dived under it in a daze after his previous accident.

Miller Under Wheels
Julius Marinell, 4601 Barrett avenue stated that he saw a man jump from the front of the car and when he looked again after his attention had been distracted for a moment he saw him being ground to death under the wheels.

Both McCarty and Parks stated that Miller had a bad bruise on his head when they picked him up off the street. This bruise continued to swell as they aided him to the car they stated.

When the car was finally brought to a halt it was found that the power was on full force. McCarty stated that the air brake was partially set when he grabbed it after his flying leap at Cutting boulevard.

Hero Retiring
McCarty, small for his age, told his story in a retiring manner to a representative of the RECORD HERALD yesterday afternoon. It was only by questioning that the youth admitted his part in the daring stopping of the car. After he had finished his story the youth shuddered at the ghastly scene which he had witnessed. He couldn't explain just how he managed to know which lever to grab in the car other than that he had seen motomen stop street cars on which he was riding "in that way."

Harold Calvert is the scoutmaster of Troop 1 of El Cerrito of which McCarty has been a member for a year and a half, since it was first organized.

—RACS WANTED—

L.A. ORDINANCE IN COURT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(UP)—Objectors to rezoning ordinances passed by the Los Angeles city council early this year appeared to the state supreme court here today for relief and the court took their petition under submission.

The petition for an alternative writ of mandate was filed for George W. Ley by Arthur A. Weber. It was against Robert Dominguez, Los Angeles city clerk.

The petition declared that on Jan. 23, 1930, the Los Angeles city council passed the two new zoning ordinances. Then, Ley said, referendum petitions were circulated and they were filed with Dominguez on March 15.

Ley charged that thereafter Dominguez examined the referendum petitions in an "illegal manner," rejecting names and refusing to consider affidavits of the signers. He claimed that after the rejected names were taken from the petition they were refused and he asks a reconsideration.

Ability to Pay

In extending credit to his customers a number of years ago John Wanamaker of Philadelphia proved that this requirement was the least of importance. Many men controlling large sums of money had their cash so tied up in investments and business that although they had the ultimate ability to repay loans they seldom took care of obligations promptly.

He placed at the top of the list the moral character of the individual and proved conclusively that a man of good standing and possessing a pleasing credit record always pays his obligations as they fall due.

Here in Richmond the Mechanics Bank is pleased to extend loans on the basis of character. If you need money drop into one of our conveniently located offices and discuss your requirements with one of our officers.

You go about conquering your merciless enemy in a different way—knock-out way. You take one tiny capsule each hour for the first ten hours—then relief comes.

The second day, take one every two hours for 14 hours—Then take 4 little green capsules every day until every little twinge and every bit of tenderness is gone and your troubles have ceased.

Centerville To Play Richmond Nine Here Today

The Richmond union high school varsity nine will try to repeat Tuesday's victory over the league leaders when it tangles with the Centerville high school athletes today on the First street diamond. The Richmond boys are more confident than they were before the successful contest with Alameda last Tuesday. They believe that if they can defeat the league leaders, they will be able to take a team of a lower ranking into camp. However, the locals have been once defeated by Centerville, and today's contest will be no walk-away for either team.

Either Babich or Lemmon will twirl for the Richmond team, while Rosano or Bay will do the receiving for the local outfit. The game will start at four o'clock on the First street of 6th. Time 16 1-5.

National Bird Held Menace

SEWARD, Alaska, April 3.—UP—The national bird of the United States—the American eagle—is a menace in this far-off northern possession and Alaskans are determined to protest vigorously against a bill before Congress which would protect the bird from being killed.

The Alaskan legislature has re-enacted an act providing for a bounty on eagles for the past 17 years.

School nurse says all girls should know this real relationship between their master and mistress meant little. That little brown-skinned half-savage should be so concerned for her meant a great deal. It was on a par with her action that day of the swimming. It was all on a par with the love-lings surrounding her on this love boat. In an access of emotional response she drew Loom to her and held the small brown body close to her own.

And so day after day they made their southerly course, till one noon there showed ahead a line of land, a thin line low to the water, with upon it a blur of palm-tops and above it and about it the quiver and the haze of heat and the sea.

"Motogaru!" cried Manna as he sailed.

"The day was bright as only a tropical day knows how to be bright. The directly overhead sun lent flash and sparkle to the crinkling of the sea. There was life in that flash and sparkle—rejoicing life. Ahead and on either side were irregular areas of reef, with a half tide exposing the number of coral knobs rounded like men's heads, and the grass-green of growths like antlers just beneath the water and awash. The passage which Dolobe's sharp eyes discovered, and which by its waving of his brown arm he directed Manna to follow, was a passage so vagrant of direction that repeatedly it threatened to come to a dead end, and yet opened always into a blue way threading further the labyrinth of growing rock.

Soon the lagoon lay before them, and the major details of the land. Stella thrilled as she looked. It was a beautiful island.

But she read in it more than mere beauty. In that loveliness she saw sweet invitation and expressed promise of abiding happiness and rest. One could not be other than happy there, she thought. She likened the winging of the cutter towards it as to the homing of a great, white, wandering bird.

"Our island, David—ours!" she said softly.

He was standing beside her, studying the shore through binoculars, and he nodded more or less casually.

"It seems all right," he said. "The coconut-palms seem to be quite as numerous as the crew-boys said. I think we are in luck. If the islanders are willing to trade, we shall have things all our own way."

Stella laughed gay reproach. "You are a practical old thing! So matter of fact!"

Petitions Soon For Macdonald Avenue Lights

Al Furrer, chairman of the lighting committee of the Richmond Merchants' association, announced at a meeting of the directors of the association yesterday that petitions asking the city council to establish a better lighting district for Macdonald avenue would be put into circulation among the property owners soon.

"Before these petitions are placed in circulation," said Furrer, "we have been endeavoring to get the city council to adopt a new policy with regard to Macdonald avenue lighting. In districts off the avenue the city is paying for fifteen per cent of the lighting expense. We believe that this proportion should be increased for the avenue. In fact, in most of the cities of the state the expense is entirely borne by the city. With many other city expenses we can't expect that in Richmond, but the proportion ought to be better than fifteen per cent for the city's main business thoroughfare."
